"Manley Hopkinson is the sort of man you would follow to the ends of the Earth" - Ian Gray, Director, Turnaround Management Association

Now, more than ever before, the world needs compassionate leaders. Drawing upon a wide range of case-studies and extraordinary stories, this brilliantly motivational, user-friendly, and highly practical book offers a one-stop guide to securing 'the best for all' through Compassionate Leadership.

Manley Hopkinson has led teams to success in the world's most challenging environments. Having skippered a crew in the world's toughest yacht race 32,000 miles around the globe, served as an Officer in the Royal Navy, and set a record for the first skiing race to the Magnetic North Pole, he has led every kind of team possible. And it is his belief, that anyone can do the same.

Compassionate Leadership is a comprehensive, life-changing, and life-fulfilling guide to developing actions and attitudes that are applicable across all situations and relationships. The book answers in compelling and jargon-free terms, questions such as:

- How can I build a more committed, aligned and engaged team?
- What can I do to ensure that my team feel empowered and enthusiastic when working remotely?
- How can I establish a stronger and more defined culture in my business?
- How does compassionate leadership effect the big picture?

Above all else, Manley reveals that Compassionate Leadership is not about securing the best 'out of' someone, but how to get the best for them. He argues compassion isn't about vulnerability but courage. It is about achievement, legacy and growth for all stakeholders long-term. Manley shares how, through evolving with the times and pulling together our collective brilliance, we can change the world into one that is more compassionate, and, ultimately, more resilient.
